Gasoline has dropped in price 1 cent a gallon in Chicago and suburbs according to announcement made last week by T. J. Thompson, general manager of the Standard Oil company of Indiana. This brings the price at service stations to 19 cents a gallon and at tank stations to 17 cents. The last previous cut was made on June 25, when a drop of two cents a gallon was scored.

The dairies of several farmers living near Libertyville were visited on last Thursday by an inspector from the Chicago board of health. The real purpose of his visit is not entirely clear at the present time.

Road building in Wisconsin on a greater scale than ever before has done much to relieve the state's unemployment situation in the opinion of the highway department. More than 10,000 men and 4,000 teams are engaged in road construction this summer.

David Alexander, Ingleside youth, attracted considerable attention last week in Chicago at the South Shore Country club, where he participated in the Junior Grand American Handicap shoot. Ingleside, home of the Graham brothers, seems to keep in the lead in trap shooting events.

An important act in relation to the definition, registration and regulation of real estate brokers and real estate salesmen, was enacted during the session of the last legislature, which provided that on and after January 1, 1922, it shall be unlawful for any person to act as such real estate broker or real estate salesman, without a certificate of registration issued by the department of registration and education. Provided that nothing in the act contained shall prohibit the co-operation of, or a division of commissions between, a duly registered broker of this state and a non resident broker having no office in this state.

Five hundred bodies of American soldier dead, among them that of Private Wesley Strang, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Strang, of Gurnee, awaiting shipment to the homes of relatives, were removed in safety last week when fire of unknown origin swept over the army water front reservation at Hoboken, N. J., destroying piers 5 and 6 and an adjoining army storehouse and barracks.

Motor boats can now be sent through the channel connecting Nippersink and Pistakee lakes without any trouble, it was announced last week with the completion of dredging started two months ago. W. J. Kittle, ousted as salesmanager of the Milk Marketing company refuses to stay ousted, according to information that comes from the long time official of the company. With the Illinois crop for this year estimated at 50,000,000 bushels below the five-year average of 346,000,000 bushels, S. D. Fessenden, United States agricultural statistician, does not anticipate that the farmers will experience any difficulty in disposing of their yields.

Many Local Tax Payers Appear Before Board

The supervisors' room at the court house was packed Monday by taxpayers from Antioch, Newport, Lake Villa, Grant and Avon townships to show cause why their real estate should not be assessed in accordance with the 30 per cent increase that was put upon it by the board of review in 1919, and which some taxpayers in various part of the county escaped by taking it into court.

The proposed increase is upon real estate, the board attempting to equalize assessments. Chairman Ray Padlock made a statement to the taxpayers, declaring that the board has no way of paying back to those who paid the increased taxes the percentage which the objectors succeeded in evading, and that by equalizing the assessments now all would pay according to the assessment, which would make it a fair proposition for all.

Most of those which came before the board were farmers and they feel that they are already paying high enough taxes, which Chairman Padlock, also a farmer admitted, but added that they were called only for the purpose of compelling if possible everyone to pay the same by legalizing the 30 per cent raise so that certain ones cannot go to court and again evade payment of part of their taxes while those who do not object are compelled to pay more in accordance with the amount of their assessed valuation.

Milk Producers Hold Meeting at Woodman Hall

The Milk Producers association held a meeting in the Woodman hall Tuesday evening. The question of the cut in price of milk was the main issue of meeting. Mr. W. D. Dunning of Pleasant Prairie made a strong appeal to the members to stick to the organization, and his remarks were met with great enthusiasm. A Mr. Harrington was one of the speakers of the evening and gave a very impressive talk on organization and his remarks were frequently interspersed with many humorous stories that kept the meeting in an uproar of laughter. A few more speakers of this calibre will do more to keep the organization together than anything else.

The organization has now reached the state which most organizations have passed through, and it is the hope of the clear-thinking men of the farm-er class that the men will not break ranks as the principles of this organization are in the right and the ability to see the crisis through on the part of members will no doubt end in success in the near future and bring to the farmer his just due.

The News wishes to thank the judges for their co operation in this campaign and for their prompt action in reporting their selections.

School This Year Has Been Redecorated Throughout;
Staff Complete

FEW CHANGES WERE MADE

On Tuesday, September 6th, the "kiddies" vacation ends. That is the date set for the opening of both the grade school and high school.

The grade school is being redecorated throughout, the walls being calcimined and all woodwork re-varnished. Playground apparatus has been installed in the school yard and everything is in readiness for the first bell on Tuesday.

The list of teachers this year is practically the same as last, the only new addition to the staff being Miss Andrews, who will have charge of the third and fourth grades. The other teachers, Miss Dunham, first and second grades; Mrs. Garland, fifth and sixth grades, while Mr. McTaggart will have charge of the seventh and eighth grades.

The Emmons school will also open on September 6th.

The corps of teachers for the High School is now complete and everything will be ready for the opening day on Sept. 6. The preliminary registration day is on Friday, Sept. 3. This day will be given over entirely to consultation in regard to programs. Each pupil is to be there sometime during the day. It will require only a short time for each. If the parents have questions to ask they should come at this time.

For the freshmen there are two courses to be selected. The boys may take Agriculture and General Science or Latin and History. The girls may take Cooking and General Science or Latin and History. This is in addition to the Algebra and English, which is required of all.

The following is the list of teachers: L. O. Bright, Principal, Manual Training and Economics; D. M. Chalcraft, Agriculture; Alice Smith, Latin and Mathematics; Marjorie Brand, English; Elizabeth Seward, History and Commercial; Deedie Tiffany, Home Economics; Mollie C. Clevenger, Science.

Ermine Carey, who has been in charge of the domestic science department for the past three years and had signed for this year has been forced to resign because of illness. The school board expects to fill the vacancy this week. Miss Hanson, the mathematics teacher, is from Milwaukee normal, and comes very highly recommended. Miss Hope, of Salem, has been secured for the primary department. Miss Devine, who was to have been principal, has resigned and the vacancy is yet to be filled.

Prin. Ihlenfeldt reports great interest among the boys of the community in the high school band that is to be organized this year. A large number have already applied for admission. Clarence Wright, of Salem, has agreed to drill the band and assist with the organization.

Pumping Station Motor Damaged by Storm

The new motor at the pumping station is being re-wired and overhauled after burning up last Saturday morning, due to the electrical storm of Friday night.

When Lewis Felter turned on the switch to start the pumping apparatus, the motor immediately became overheated and in a few minutes the entire building was filled with smoke and before the switch could be thrown off, the motor was burned, the insulation on the wire burned off and the wiring melted together.

Until the motor is repaired, the old gasoline engine is being used.

Scarcity of Homes in Village Serious Problem

The housing situation in Antioch is now getting to the acute stage. The village is making progress in its population, but no attempt has been made to take care of the prospective citizens. Many cases have been reported to this paper and one prominent real estate dealer of this town makes the assertion that there are ten families trying to locate in Antioch.

One family, formerly of Lake Villa, wishes to reside in Antioch so as to send their son to our high school, but has been unable to find living quarters. Another, a new addition to the teaching staff at the high school, has no better prospects than having his family live in furnished rooms all winter, while numerous others have reported similar cases.

The old excuse of high material and labor costs certainly cannot be maintained at this time, according to lumber men and contractors, and a building program on the part of some of the citizens will be greatly appreciated by the houseless families and will no doubt prove a mutual benefit to the town and the builders.

Secures Feature Film After Much Inconvenience

The appearance of "Way Down East," the latest D. W. Griffith production, said to be one of his greatest masterpieces, is another triumph for Antioch. This picture has been widely advertised in Chicago as "a picture that will not appear in any small towns." An attempt was made at the last moment to secure a withdrawal of this picture from the program of the Majestic theatre. Mr. King received a telegram from the main office of the producers advising a cancellation of the picture, as it had been let out through a mistake on part of the Chicago branch office, but as Mr. King had contracts for the picture and had much money involved in advertising, he decided to hold the producers to their contract, and "Way Down East" will be shown at the Majestic for three days, starting tomorrow.

The car skidding through the soft gravel, ran into a tree. Four persons were in the car at the time, but only Arado was seriously injured and had to be removed to the hospital at Waukegan.

Preparations for Wilmot Lawn Musicales Complete

Elaborate preparations for the lawn fete and musicale which the Holy Name congregation is giving on the lawn of the Wilmot parsonage Saturday night, September 3, are under way this week. The congregation hopes to make it the biggest affair of this kind ever given in the community. An excellent program which starts at 8 o'clock has been prepared. Fred Beckman, one of Kenosha, leading soloist, has promised to sing several songs and besides he is bringing his quartet who have consented to give several numbers. IRELAND WARNED BY LLOYD GEORGE End Note Writing and Send Delegates for Another Parley, Is Reply to De Valera.

PREMIER FOR QUICK ACTION

Declares "In Rejecting British Settlement Terms Ireland Refuses Wider Range of Rights Than Those Enjoyed by States."

London, Aug. 29.—In rejecting the British settlement terms Ireland turned down a wider range of rights than enjoyed by the states of the American Union, Premier Lloyd George declared on Friday in his answer to the Irish parliament's refusal to the British peace conditions.

"We cannot prolong the more exchange of notes," said Premier Lloyd George.

"It is essential that definite and immediate progress be made toward a basis whereupon further negotiations can usefully proceed."

"Further negotiations are futile unless there is some definite progress made towards the acceptance of a basis."

"Your letter seems to us, unfortunately, to show no such progress. If you are prepared to examine how far these considerations can be reconciled with the aspirations you present I will be happy to meet you and your colleagues."

"In demanding that Ireland be treated as a separate sovereign power you are advancing aims which the famous leaders of Irish history explicitly disowned."

"The British government offered Ireland all that O'Connell, Thomas and Davis asked, and more; we met the unqualified demand that we recognize Ireland as a foreign power."

"We do not believe that a permanent reconciliation between Britain and Ireland can ever be attained without a recognition of the physical and historical interdependence which makes a complete political and economic separation impracticable."

"Under the settlement which we outlined, Ireland would control every nerve and fiber of its national existence. She would be free in every aspect of national activity and development."

"The states of the American Union, sovereign though they be, enjoy no such range of rights."

"I consider that our proposals completely fulfill your wish that the principle of 'government by the consent of the governed' be the broad guiding principle of the settlement."

"We can discuss no settlement which involves a refusal on the part of Ireland to accept the invitation of a free, equal and loyal partnership in the British commonwealth under one sovereign."

"We are reluctant to precipitate the issue, but prolongation of the present state of affairs is dangerous and action is being taken in various directions which, if continued, will prejudice the truce and ultimately lead to its termination. This would be deplorable."

The British premier reiterated in unequivocal terms that the British government can consider no settlement that means Ireland's secession from the British crown.

De Valera's note replying to Lloyd George's last proposal after telling of the rejection of the offer by Dall Eireann, concluded as follows:

"On the basis of the broad principle that ours is a government with the consent of the governed, peace is possible and can be secured—a peace which is just and honorable to all, and fruitful of concord and enduring amity."

"To negotiate such a peace Dall Eireann is ready to appoint representatives, and if your government accepts this principle, to invest them with plenary powers to meet and arrange the application and details."

PLAN PUBLIC FUNERAL

Victims of ZR-2 Tragedy to Be Honored in London.

Air Ministry Has Project Under Advise—All England Profoundly Stirred by Horror.

London, Aug. 29.—The American and British victims of the disaster to the ZR-2 at Hull will be accorded a great public funeral, probably in London, it is considered certain. The air ministry had the project under advisement and an announcement regarding it was expected at any time.

Meanwhile, all England, profoundly stirred by the destruction of the giant dirigible—the greatest of all air disasters—is giving expression to its deep feeling of mourning for the victims and sympathy for those bereaved. In London the atmosphere was somewhat akin to that which followed the receipt of news of a serious disaster during the war days.

It was at Howden, Hull, Leeds and neighboring towns, however, where lived the wives and relatives of many of the men whose lives were snuffed out by the disaster, that the loss was most keenly felt. In these places, too, were the English brides of nine of the American enlisted men who came to England for the trans-ocean flight. These young women had been eagerly awaiting the time of the ZR-2's flight from America and had expected soon to follow on board a government transport to their new homes.

As the dirigible was still British property, not having yet been turned over to the American authorities, all investigations of the calamity will be supervised by the British air ministry.

As the British premier put it, the interrelated indebtedness was the "larger question," and the settlement of the British debt to the United States could not be allowed to "prejudice it." If this country could formulate a plan reconciling the two, the "British government," he added, "would be glad to fall in with it."

The Treasury department refused summarily to entertain the proposal, and the American negotiators were recalled from London. When the administration changed hands and the question of resuming negotiations was again brought to the fore, it was thought that Great Britain had altered her opinion on the subject. The new administration has learned, however, that it is still the same.

According to treasury officials, the advantages of the British plan from their standpoint are obvious. They point out that a large share of the money she obtained from this country was subsequently passed along in loans to her allies. They assert if she could apply the securities she has taken for these loans against the indebtedness to the United States, the Treasury department would eventually have its vaults stacked with the bonds of half of the nations of the Old World, whose ability to pay in many cases is seriously doubted.

The same situation, treasury officials declare, is true of France and to some extent Italy. Finally, they assert, it would mean that all this country would have to show for the $10,000,000,000 it loaned abroad during the war would be the questionable securities of a lot of small nationalities, to which the principal allies lent money, instead of their bonds, whose value is unchallenged.

LUMP ALL DEBTS, BRITISH DEMAND

England Will Insist on General Readjustment of War Debts.

MELLON'S VIEWS OPPOSED

London's Attitude Is Having Disquieting Effect in Administration Circles at Washington—Want U. S. Debts Handled Individually.

Washington, Aug. 31.—The British government has informally advised the United States that, when negotiations for the payment of its war debt are resumed, it will insist upon a general readjustment of the interrelated indebtedness as the basis for a final settlement. It was learned authoritatively here.

According to information in official quarters, Great Britain believes that in liquidating the war loans, those made by the United States to the allies and those made among themselves should be treated as a whole instead of severally. Her idea, it is said, is that it will facilitate the liquidation.

While the British government has proposed no definite plan for handling the war indebtedness, the tentative suggestion has been made that each country issue uniform bonds to the amount of its obligations.

The British attitude is having a disquieting effect in administration circles. It is diametrically opposed to that of Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and severe complications between the two governments are in prospect if she persists in her view.

Secretary Mellon believes that the debts to this government should be handled individually without reference to obligations held by the allies between themselves. He also opposes acceptance of obligations other than those of the debtor country in repayment in the case of the larger nations, such as Great Britain, France and Italy. As to the smaller governments whose stability is not so certain he believes it might be well to take even German reparation bonds in settlement.

The government was officially notified of Great Britain's position a year ago when negotiations which had been under way in London for some time were suddenly terminated. At that time the British premier, Lloyd George, wrote President Wilson that his government could not proceed to a settlement unless it was made "part and parcel of an all round arrangement of interrelated debts."

As the British premier put it, the interrelated indebtedness was the "larger question," and the settlement of the British debt to the United States could not be allowed to "prejudice it." If this country could formulate a plan reconciling the two, the "British government," he added, "would be glad to fall in with it."

The Treasury department refused summarily to entertain the proposal, and the American negotiators were recalled from London. When the administration changed hands and the question of resuming negotiations was again brought to the fore, it was thought that Great Britain had altered her opinion on the subject. The new administration has learned, however, that it is still the same.

According to treasury officials, the advantages of the British plan from their standpoint are obvious. RECOGNITION OF MEXICO IS NEXT

Resumption of Relations Is Expected Some Time This Fall.

TREATY HAS BEEN DRAFTED

Preliminary Negotiations Have Been Under Way Some Time Between the State Department and President Obregon.

Washington, Aug. 30.—A reconciliation with Mexico will be the next step in putting the country's international affairs in order, now that the German treaty has been signed, it was learned in official quarters here.

If present plans materialize the formal resumption of cordial relations between the estranged governments may be expected before the coming disarmament conference or soon afterward.

Preliminary negotiations have been under way some time between the State department and President Obregon. They have been undertaken in line with the administration's announced plan of formulating a treaty providing adequate guarantees for the protection of American lives and property in Mexico and safeguards against new ruptures between the two countries.

The negotiations have reached a point where a treaty has been drafted and its consummation awaits only the action of the Mexican government on the provisions pertaining to the Carranza oil decrees.

These decrees give the Mexican government the right of arbitrary domain in all mineral lands in the country, thus making private property on which minerals are located subject to confiscation at the whim of the government.

The decrees stipulate that their provisions shall be retroactive. This stipulation has been protested by the American government as a menace to American holdings in Mexico, and on the action the Obregon regime takes in regard to the protest virtually hinges the whole question of recognition and the restoration of friendly relations.

President Obregon, according to high officials in the State department, has in the interest of amicable conditions indicated his willingness to construe the drastic mineral decrees liberally and even to eliminate from them the retroactive clause which mainly occasioned the American objections.

Although he has been able to compose the physical disturbances in Mexico, President Obregon has not been successful in dealing with the political factions aligned against him.

These factions, which it is said are also antagonistic toward the United States, were responsible, according to officials, for the recent refusal of the Mexican government to modify the decree in conformance with the American protest.

Since that time the question of whether the decree can be made retroactive has been carried to the Mexican supreme court. A final decision is expected any day. If the verdict is favorable the government stands ready immediately to conclude its negotiations for the re-establishment of friendly relations.

The capacity President Obregon has displayed in this regard and his eagerness to be on friendly terms once more with this country have made a decidedly favorable impression on the government.

GIANT U. S. AIRSHIP EXPLODES; 43 DIE

Eighteen Members of American Crew on the ZR-2 Perish in Disaster at Hull, Eng.

BURNING AIRCRAFT PLUNGES INTO RIVER

Machine Breaks in Two After Explosion and Falls in Flames—Victims Burned to Death—Airship Was Ready for Long Flight to United States—Was Valued at $2,000,000.

London, Aug. 28.—The great dirigible ZR-2, which began a trial flight on Tuesday morning, was wrecked by an explosion and fell into the Humber river on Wednesday evening. The airship was valued at $2,000,000. Eighteen of the twenty-one Americans who were to pilot her across the Atlantic to the United States, are believed to have perished.

Of the 49 officers and enlisted men in the huge dirigible's crew, 28 of whom were British, all but six lost their lives when the ship exploded over the city of Hull at six o'clock in the evening.

Twelve bodies have been recovered, among them that of Commander Louis H. Maxfield of Washington, D. C., who was in command of the ZR-2.

Cause of Blast Unknown. Air Commodore Maitland of the British air forces, who piloted the dirigible and was Britain's foremost pilot, also was killed.

None of the six survivors has been able to advance a theory of the cause of the disaster. The ZR-2 had been in the air 35 hours on her trial flight. The dirigible was floating easily over Hull in plain sight of thousands of people on the streets, when suddenly the crowds saw a flash and heard a tremendous explosion.

Ship Plunges into River. The concussion shook buildings and broke windows in Hull. The airship burst into flames and appeared to break in two. While the panic-stricken populace rushed to and fro to escape the debris, the 700-foot bag, laden with heavy engines, great gasoline tanks and cabin equipment, plunged, burning, into the river.

As it touched the water, another explosion occurred. Many of the victims were burned to death after the balloon fell. Eyewitnesses saw at least four men leap in parachutes. The six rescued were all delirious.

Describes Disaster. A description of the ZR-2 disaster was given by James Pilson of Birmingham, an eyewitness.

"I was just opposite Victoria pier when it happened," said Pilson. I could see the propellers turning slowly as the ship disappeared into a cloud bank. After two or three moments she emerged again and I was almost struck dumb to see the airship break in two pieces.

Airship Breaks in Two. "The airship seemed to stand still for a second or two as the two pieces gradually broke apart, descending slowly, the nose portion at first seemingly under control."

"Then I saw portions of the gondolas falling away. The nose portion fell on a mud bank in the Humber, which was at low tide. After burying its nose in the sand that portion of the ship continued to burn fiercely."

"There was no sign of any one on that part of the ship."

"The tail end fell in the middle of the river half a mile away and was also blazing."

Three Drop in Parachute. "When the nose landed there were two further explosions. The gasoline tanks burst with the impact."

"I saw three parachutes leave the front part of the ship as it broke. It looked to me as if three men were hanging to one of the parachutes, but I could not see where they landed."

"As far as I know only two men survived. They were Mechanic Bateman and Lieut. A. H. Wann, who commanded the ship. I saw Lieutenant Estley's body taken away. It was all burned and charred. Wann was terribly injured, but Bateman was able to walk. Both Wann and Bateman were rescued from the wreckage in the Humber."

Planned Flight to U. S. The ZR-2 was to have left Pulham for the United States within ten or twelve days.

The dirigible cost $2,000,000. In addition the United States government expended $4,000,000 in the construction of a huge hangar near Lakehurst, N. J., and in sending a crew to England to bring the dirigible home.

More than a month ago a girder of the ZR-2 buckled on a trial trip, and the ship was laid up for repairs. Frequent delays since then have interfered with intended flights.

WOMAN AVOIDS AN OPERATION

Hope Nearly Gone, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Saved Her

Star, N. C.—"My monthly spells gave me so much trouble, sometimes they would last two weeks. I was treated by two doctors without relief and they both said I would have to have an operation. I had my trouble four years and was unfit to do anything, and had given up all hope of ever getting any better. I read about your medicine in the 'Primitive Baptist' paper and decided to try it. I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills for about seven months and now I am able to do my work. I shall never forget your medicine and you may publish this if you want to as it is true."—Mrs. J. F. Hunsley, Star, N. C.

Here is another woman who adds her testimony to the many whose letters we have already published, proving that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound often restores health to suffering women even after they have gone so far that an operation is deemed advisable. Therefore it will surely pay any woman who suffers from ailments peculiar to her sex to give this good old fashioned remedy a fair trial.

Hunger. Judge Horace Flanagan of Duluth was praising the fortitude of the hunger striker.

"Hunger is a terrible thing," he said. "I remember one evening when my wife sent our eldest boy to bed without any supper—punishment, you know, for some slight misdemeanor."

"Well, after my own supper I got to feeling sorry for the little fellow, so I tiptoed upstairs to his room and whispered through the door:

"Bill, could you eat some honey in the comb?"

"Daddy," said the boy, 'I could eat it in the brush.'"

Difficult Feat. "I suppose," said a lady to a cop-ductor, "if I pay the fare for my dog he will be treated the same as other passengers and be allowed to occupy a seat?"

"Of course, madam," the conductor replied politely "he will be treated the same as other passengers and can occupy a seat, provided he does not put his feet on it."

Planning Greatest of County Fairs

All northern Illinois is going to participate in this year's Cook county fair, to be held at Palatine, September 13 to 18. The general scope of the fair will be broader than ever before. Primarily it will be a real pageant of agricultural progress, but the program contemplates the entertainment and instruction of every man, woman and child in the upper part of the state, whether of the city or of the rural community. Ten thousand dollars will be awarded in premiums and the speed events call for prizes aggregating $5,000.

Cook's sister counties are lending moral as well as practical support, and they are going to aid in making the fair the biggest event of the kind ever held in northern Illinois. The best harness horses in the central west have been entered for the races, and a big feature of the program will be professional automobile, motorcycle and bicycle races. Many of the leading drivers and riders will take part in these races. Aside from the big agricultural and live stock exhibits, there will be an automobile show and a horse show. Household displays also will be more extensive than ever before.

The management plans to make the junior Cook county fair a leading feature of the week's celebration. This fair will be open to all children in Cook county, and these children are counting on the presence of their friends from adjoining counties. A. E. Paul is superintendent of the junior fair, and he is being ably supported by Edward J. Tobin, superintendent of Cook county schools. On Friday, the 16th, a special holiday will be proclaimed for the Cook county school children in order that this feature of the fair may be successful and full of interest.

All the principal centers of the northern counties will conduct automobile tours to the fair, and the Chicago automobile clubs are planning tours that will make the 26-mile stretch to Palatine look like an unbroken procession of machines. Chicago has had its Pageant of Progress, but it is taking big pride in the Palatine fair and will do its full part toward making it a big success, feeling that it is as much its fair as the rest of the county's.

Tuesday, September 13, will be Inaugural day, and Gov. Len Small will officially open the fair. Wednesday will be American Legion day, and all A. L. posts of the county will take part, with many posts of other counties represented. Thursday will be suburban day and fifty suburban towns will participate. Friendly rivalry among these towns will be shown in point of numbers attending and attractiveness of "turnouts." Friday will be Farm Bureau and public school day, and a big Farm Bureau picnic will be a feature. Saturday will be Chicago day, and prominent men from the metropolis will speak. Sunday will be automobile day with the big races for automobiles and motorcycles. It will be a day-and-night fair. Aside from the regular features, every night will witness display of fireworks and be further enlivened by special high class attractions.

This Man Likes His Fordson

August 12, 1921
Antioch Sales and Service Co.
Antioch, Ill.
Gentlemen:

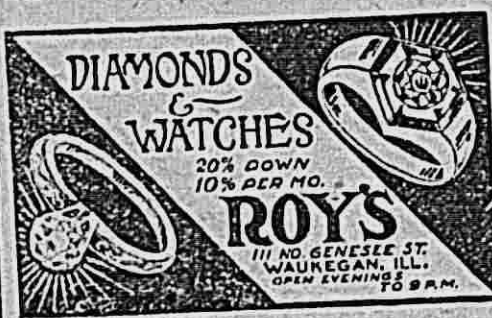

It is a puzzle for me to answer your question—"What would I do without my Fordson?" The ground at present is so dry and hard that if I did not have a Fordson I would be unable to plow until we have several good rains. Fortunately, however, I can now start at Fall plowing and expect to plow all my ground, something that I have never been able to do with horses. I am a believer in Fall plowing; weeds are killed and ground improved by so doing.

I am running 217 acres with a Fordson tractor and improved implements and four horses. I have had my Fordson tractor one and one-half years with a total expense for mechanical work of approximately $12.00; I am saving considerable time by doing my grinding at home with a Stover No. 40 mill.

My crop of oats ran 10 bushels heavier than any of my neighbors not using a tractor. The only man on my run that got a greater yield is a Fordson owner. His yield was close to 50 bushels per acre this year while the farmers without tractors ran 25 to 35.

I advise any farmer to purchase a Fordson outfit.

Yours very truly,
Signed Harry Schwabke.

"I smiled—and he shot me"

AFTER MONTHS and months, MY WIFE persuaded me. TO HAVE it done. SO I went around. TO THE photographer. AND GOT mugged. WHEN THE pictures came. I SHOWED them to a gang. OF AMATEUR art critics. AND PROFESSIONAL crabs. DISGUISED AS friends. WHO FAVORED me. WITH SUCH remarks as. "DOESN'T HE look natural?" "HAS IT got a tail?" "A GREAT resemblance." AND THAT last one. MADE ME sore. SO WHEN friend wife. ADDED HER howl. I TRIED again.

THIS TIME they were great. FOR HERE'S what happened. THE PHOTOGRAPHER said. "LOOK THIS way, please." AND HELD up something. AS HE pushed the button. AND NO one could help. BUT LOOK pleasant. FOR WHAT he held up. WAS A nice full pack. OF THE cigarettes. THAT SATISFY.

When you come right down to reason, what is there to "discount" tires —

THE next time a friend comes to you all excited about some wonderful tire bargain—ask him how much value he ought to get for each dollar of tire money.

It's astonishing that any car owner today should not know all the tire service he is entitled to.

Nor how to check up between the economy of par quality on one hand—and big discounts, surplus stocks, discontinued lines and retreads on the other.

For two years U. S. Tire makers have been telling the American people all about tires.

They have laid open the tire business from every angle.

They have always led the fight for better tires.

They have consistently maintained quality first standards with certain economy for the tire buyer.

They have established 92 Factory Branches all over the country. Perfecting U. S. distribution so that you get a fresh, live tire every time you buy a U. S. Tire.

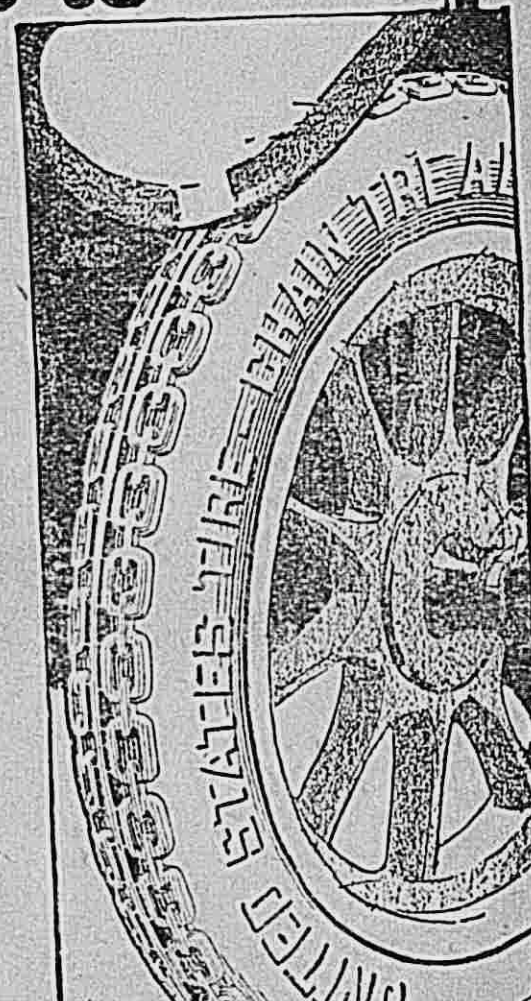

So when a man once decides on U. S. Tires he knows what he is getting in quality—service—economy.

In support of his own judgment he gets the pledged word and reputation of the largest and most successful tire concern in the world.

A sound reason for the fact that you see more U. S. Tires on more cars than ever this year.

OUR LEADING INDUSTRY

Antioch's paramount industry is manufacturing health and happiness for the summer residents. The greater the output, the better it will be for all year round citizens. Our prosperity is largely based on the money poured into the village in the summer months. It's good sense and good business to encourage the growth of this summer patronage in every legitimate way. No stumbling blocks should be placed in the way of law abiding city visitors who seek rest and recreation in our midst. The easy access to our village depends largely on the automobile and the road over which it travels. We should bend every energy to insure the passage of the new north and south trunk line passing through our town. If it should pass to the east due to the due to the activities of some of our citizens, it would prove a serious menace to our future welfare. Let us all get together and sink our personal differences by working unitedly for a Greater Antioch.

The merchants of Antioch deserve and need the support of our citizens. They cannot continue to exist without liberal local patronage. When you are tempted to buy out of town, think what would happen if the stores had to close, making it imperative to make all your purchases in the cities.

MAE MURRAY in the GEORGE FITZMAURICE production "THE RIGHT TO LOVE" A PARAMOUNT PICTURE

9 and 10. George Fitzmaurice produced the picture; Ouida Bergere furnished the scenario, and Mae Murray and David Powell are the featured players. The picture is said to be a pleasing combination of beautiful scenes and dramatic action. The locale is Turkey and the heroine, played by Miss Murray, is the wife of Lord Falkland, English representative there. Falkland plays fast and loose with another woman and the result is a clash, in which Richard Loring, a young American, slays the dissolute lord. By a clever twist the action is given a happy ending.

Sometimes cats fare very well as beneficiaries under wills. It was a Parisian woman, a few years ago, who left 10,000 francs to her cat. On its death the money was to be spent on elementary schools. The feline has since died and the money distributed according to directions. In numerous instances fortunes have been left to found homes for cats and dogs. Sometimes these wills have been dictated by love of animals, while in others, alas, they have been written merely for the purpose of "getting even" with grasping relatives.

Necessarily must be made up of good, strong material to give the desired satisfaction, for, as you know, the healthy romping school boy or girl is harder on shoes at that stage of life than any other time, and it is also well to remember that if the children's feet are not fitted properly, the result is crippled feet. Do not take any chances—bring your boys and girls to this store to have their feet professionally fitted in shoes that are made up of the best grade of materials, with honest, dependable workmanship in every part, and will stand the hard wear that they will be subjected to. Our prices are right.

Antioch Loses to Silver Lake, but Trim Bankers

Many of the local ball fans were on hand at the Old Settlers' picnic at Paddock's lake last Thursday to witness the contest with the only winning team in southern Wisconsin, the strong Silverlake nine.

The locals were well aware of the kind of material they were going up against, as the winning streak of the Silverlake team has caused much talk in local base ball circles and the locals were prepared to meet their opponents, but it made little difference as Antioch met defeat. The locals had a hired pitcher, he was a whirlwind, but had a bad break in the first inning, lack of support and errors lost the whole game, that is, it looked that way to the fans, but the figures show that Silverlake was just as poor in fielding, and if they didn't have so many lucky breaks the score would have been in the locals favor 2 to 0.

Edgar struck out seventeen men and Olson nine. The locals made five hits and Silverlake eight.

A series of three games is being booked with Silverlake boys for October and will be played on better grounds we hope so that the locals will have some chance in the game as they are not in the habit of playing in cow pastures.

Sunday's game with the First National bank was not as was expected and was played very loose on the part of the visitors. They had base ball spirit alright, but they lacked the strength equal in keeping up with our boys. The locals had Wilton on the mound for three innings and he couldn't get the ball to break, so the manager put in a retired pitcher that hadn't been on the mound for some time, Bernis Fields, and after a few innings he showed up as a real come-back. During the seven innings he pitched he struck out seven men.

First Baseman Hook was missed from the game Sunday, his injury at the Paddock's lake game will keep him out of the game for the rest of the season.

Next Sunday Antioch will play the city team from Zion city and from what we learn it will be another defeat for the locals, and for this reason, let all the ball fans be on hand and give the home boys a little encouragement. The bigger the crowd the better the exhibition.

Labor day (Monday) the locals will play a game but the visiting team has not been booked as yet.

Tuesday Antioch will travel to the fair and play the Fanstels of Waukegan, the team that won the North Shore championship last year.

ERCHANT TELLS OF A REMARKABLE CASE

Writing from Maxey's, Ga., A. J. Allen, proprietor of a large department store at that place, says: "I have a customer here who was in bed for three years and did not go to bed at any time. She had five physicians and they gave her up. One bottle of Tanlac got her up, on the second bottle she commenced keeping house and on the third she did all the cooking and housework for a family of eight."

This sounds really incredible, but it comes unsolicited from a highly creditable source and is copied verbatim from the letter.

ACTION! ACTION!

Adventure—romance—mystery—battle, murder and sudden death! Well, rather. And action, action, action—on every page. That's Randall Parrish's new story, "The Mystery of the Silver Dagger."

Suppose you were an American diplomat and you fell in love at first sight with a wonderful, mysterious girl who was apparently deep in an international revolutionary conspiracy and you had the identity of a famous crook thrust upon you and you found one of the chief conspirators dead from a stab with the mysterious girl's silver dagger hatpin! And suppose you set to work to break up the conspiracy and solve the murder and win the girl—wouldn't you be busy? Well, that's this hero and this hero's job.

As to Randall Parrish, all novel-readers know him and his stories. And this is one of his best.

CHAPTER I.

The Message in the Box.

Anticipating the possibility of my train arriving late, I had named the hour of my meeting with Cummings as three o'clock, and, in consequence of our reaching the city exactly on time, was compelled to loiter idly about the hotel for an hour. However, in passing through the corridor my attention was attracted by an unique curiosity shop occupying a small side room, and, merely to pass the time pleasantly, I entered and began examining the strange collection of wares on display.

There were several articles I fingered over, tempted to purchase, but drifted on, rather undecided, until my eyes perceived a very quaint lacquered jewel box, of a class of workmanship quite unusual. The proprietor, perceiving my interest, joined me.

"The jewel box attracts you," he said pleasantly, opening the case and bringing it forth. "You have love for such things?"

"A deep interest at least," I admitted, taking the article from his hand, "a collector in an amateur way. What is the workmanship—surely not Japanese?"

"No," smilingly. "Although positively I cannot answer as to its origin. The inscription, which can only be read with a microscope"—he traced with his finger—"is ancient Arabic, but no wild Arab ever did the lacquer."

"Yet so strange a curio must have a history, an imaginary one, at least. What is the story?"

"Positively none," he admitted regretfully. "The fact is, this article was found by a chambermaid in one of the hotel rooms, and turned in to the manager. He made every effort to trace the guests, only to learn that they, two men, by the way, had registered falsely. He even advertised, but with no response, and finally, after thirty days, was persuaded to accept my offer for the article."

"You have put a price on this?"

"Yes, ridiculously low, no doubt, yet bringing me a good profit."

He named a price, and, still with the box in his hands, I yielded to the temptation, and bought it. The article was sufficiently small to find lodgings in an overcoat pocket, and, as Cummings appeared a little later, was soon forgotten in the earnestness of our conversation. We later had dinner together, and attended the theater in company, my mind so occupied once other matters that I scarcely once thought of the strange purchase I had made, which remained securely hidden. It was only after returning to my own room, then nearing midnight, that it was again recalled to memory.

Only an idle curiosity and a feeling of sleeplessness induced me to draw the article forth, and remove its wrappings, but the sight served immediately to increase my interest. It was certainly a wonderful find, artistically beautiful, and most unusual in design. There was a mystery that must have exercised a strange spell over my imagination, for I dreamed of the long-dead workman who fashioned it, forgetful of the passing night hours. A clock somewhere in the neighborhood struck, and I counted twelve, arousing myself. Perhaps I was already half sleeping, for as I turned to rise my sleeve struck the box at the edge of the table, and before I could prevent the fall, it lay upon the floor at my feet.

As I stooped hastily to recover the overturned box, I was astounded to discover the bottom slipped partially aside, as though some secret spring had been touched, revealing so narrow a receptacle that the ordinary eye would never suspect the possibility of its existence. Not only was there a false bottom, but the opening revealed a closely folded paper. I grasped this quickly, a thrill running through me. What ancient and long-buried message was about to be unfolded?

But no! This was plainly modern—a clean, white sheet, no folded parchment of old, but some mystery of yesterday. There was writing there, in Spanish, so faintly traced I could barely decipher the words, yet clearly revealed as of this day and generation. I know Spanish fairly well, having had some time before I could puzzle out the message on this sheet. The paper had been torn, seemingly sundered from a much longer letter, and preserved merely because of the specific address and instructions it contained. Beyond doubt all else had been destroyed. What remained may have been sufficient guidance to the party who had the benefit of what went before in the original epistle, but was obscure to anyone else. Yet it was modern, something relating to this very time, a menace; something to be grasped and understood. This conviction absolutely gripped me. I stared at the rather sinister words, blindly groping at what lay hidden behind them, instinctively scenting a conspiracy of evil which I could not determine. All unintentional I had stumbled into a clue which might lead to startling results, yet it seemingly gave me no hint of who was involved, or of its real nature. I put the words together, weighing each one with care as to its exact meaning, and read them over with increased bewilderment. The torn fragment began and ended abruptly; I could only guess at its meaning, yet the impression left upon my mind was both sinister and menacing. I wanted to know more.

108 sailed Saturday from Stockholm. Will deposit letter of credit with Krantz to your order. Amount ample all needs. See to this at once, and advise 876 Gans, so as to be no delay. Two raps, three—Cervantes. Waldron favors action this month; suggest Watonia. Can you be ready? Use South A code.

That this letter was authentic I had no doubt, nor was its meaning altogether obscure in the light of certain events. Several allusions were familiar to me and these were what caused my earlier suspicions to crystallize into probability. It bore all the earmarks of a plot, a revolutionary plot, and one not yet brought to consummation. To be sure the note was undated, and the box had been left at the hotel thirty days before. Yet the Watonia was certainly the name of a ship and to my memory suggested Central American trade. This did not necessarily imply that the conspirators had abandoned their purpose. More likely they were not quite ready in time to operate on the sailing date of that particular ship. Some delay had occurred, and, possibly, even now prompt action might overturn all their plans. I undressed and went to bed, but not to sleep, for the darkness brought new thoughts and suggestions for the morrow.

I was still in government employ, although unassigned, and felt this discovery to be a direct call upon my service. While my first inclination should naturally have been to turn the whole matter over to the proper bureau for investigation, two facts led me in another direction—I was sufficiently young to seek adventure, and I desired to verify my suspicions before creating any false alarm.

As I rested there, sleepless, staring up at the black ceiling, the words of the strange fragment of letter remained vividly before me. Little by little I dug at the truth, coming finally to this conclusion: "108" was, no doubt, the recognized number of some agent who had been dispatched to the America on a special errand to the conspirators in this country. He had, sailed Saturday, a month ago, or more, and must have long since arrived at some port, bringing with him instructions not to be entrusted to the mail, and sufficient money, in form of letter of credit, with which to finance whatever nefarious scheme of revolution might be contemplated. This money was to be paid out to the authorized party through a man named Krantz. Who was Krantz? There was a well-known banking firm, Kulb, Krantz & Co., in Wall Street, and it was quite probable these might prove the ones involved, although to my knowledge they had no outward junta connections of this nature. "Gans" was evidently a street, although I could recall none bearing so peculiar appellation, while the password was in itself proof almost positive as to the South or Central American sympathies of the conspirators.

These facts were fairly clear as I thus weaved them together, but they were rendered more damning by the other name mentioned—Waldron. If this was Ivan Waldron, I had good reason to know the fellow, and to connect his activities with any scheme destined to embarrass the government. He was a professional agitator of the most pronounced type, a socialist radical, who in the past had openly advocated opposition to all law and order. Moreover, the fellow had a large and desperate following, to whom he was a high priest. He was reported to be a Russian by birth, but spoke English without an accent, and I felt no doubt but what a sufficient amount of money would engage his interest in any desperate cause. The desire to "get him" added zest to my interest in the affair. If he was actually at the head of these fellows, these plotters against the neutrality of the United States, the catch would be worth while.

As soon as possible next morning I sought out Burke, the manager of the hotel, with whom I had a speaking acquaintance, and, without confiding the extent of my discovery, questioned him relative to the mysterious box, and the guests who left it behind. Two men, he said, both well dressed, but with nothing particularly to distinguish them, had registered together late in the afternoon of Friday, September 27, and on request had been assigned to one room with twin beds and a bath. The larger man, who had inscribed himself as "P. S. Horner, Detroit," alone had a bag; his companion, known to the hotel as "Gustave Alva, Toledo, Ohio," being without baggage. The bill was paid the next morning by Horner, and the two departed together. It was an hour later when the chambermaid on that floor reported finding the box in the room vacated. After holding it for a day or two in expectation that it might be called for, no such inquiries being made, the hotel endeavored to trace the men, but to no avail. The fellows had either falsified, registered, or were entirely unknown where they claimed residence. The first was the most probable condition. After thirty days, and having exhausted all reasonable efforts to find the rightful owner, the hotel felt legally justified in selling the trinket. That was all Burke knew of the matter, and his interest in it was not keen.

I am inclined to think now that I went at the problem without much system, and that any success achieved was through pure accident. During the forenoon I dropped in upon Clement Breckenridge, cashier of the Dover's National Bank. We had been classmates at college, and I generally called on him when in the city. This time I led the conversation to Kulb, Krantz & Co., on the pretense that I had received mail from them relative to some recommended investment. Clement knew Krantz well and favorably, and my probing elicited the information that the man was Austrian by birth, but a naturalized citizen, rather deeply interested in political matters. If his sympathies were at all revolutionary he had carefully refrained from any such open expression. The firm had made a specialty of handling South American business, and had intimate financial connections in both Rio and Buenos Aires. The company ranked high in financial circles.

"The present war must have cost them a rather heavy loss," I hazarded. "However, this is nothing to me. By the way, Clement, do you chance to know of a Gans street in this town?"

"Gans? That is a new one on me. Try the city directory—there on the edge of the desk."

The name was not to be found, nor any other approaching it in sound or spelling, and I finally drifted out onto the street, really no wiser than when I first entered. I made one more effort, however, telephoning to a detective sergeant whom I knew well, as to the present whereabouts of Ivan Waldron. The last heard of Waldron, he was in West Virginia, speaking to striking miners; that was less than a week ago; he had not been seen in the city since.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It

Applicants for Insurance Often Rejected.

Judging from reports from druggists who are constantly in direct touch with the public, there is one preparation that has been very successful in overcoming these conditions. The mild and healing influence of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its remarkable record of success.

An examining physician for one of the prominent Life Insurance Companies, in an interview on the subject, made the astonishing statement that one reason why so many applicants for insurance are rejected is because kidney trouble is so common to the American people, and the large majority of those whose applications are declined do not even suspect that they have the disease.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is on sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large. However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.
